AUTOMOBILE SHOW IS BIG SUCCESS

legged for more. Vess Osman, by the way, is just about as good as they come when given a banjo. He made it talk. The cabaret performance is easily a feature, and a big one at that, whether at an automobile show or a theatre.

Not that Professor Stein's orchestra should be overlooked. It surpasses any local musical organization in years. A comprehensive program was offered and will be continued throughout the week, as will the cabaret performances. These two things, the cabaret entertainers and the orchestra, will keep the building thronged all the rest of the week.

All Makes on Hand.

As for the exhibitors, every prominent make in the United States is represented. There are Buick, Chrysler, the Standard, Packard, Little Giant, Cadillac, Abbott-Detroit, Stutz, Wagon, Clinch, Michigan, Peerless, Hupmobile and others. Accessories of every known kind are on hand. It was a feast for the crowd present. Each exhibit is in charge of some one ready and anxious to explain.

At the far end of the centre display section will be found a display of women's motor wear. There is nothing like this has been left out from the dainty and fetching Tam-o-Shanter to the more ostentatious fur covering. It's all there for inspection.

Decidedly the best exhibit ever held in Richmond, the opening night offers reason to believe that a record, so far as attendance is concerned, will be established before the end of the week. There is so much to attract the attention of all. Though primarily an automobile show, the added features, such as the cabaret show and the orchestra, make it worth while even for those who have no interest whatever in the automobile. The riot of color, the glory of the decoration, the intensely interesting performances of the singers and dancers, as well as the satisfying influence of the orchestra, all will combine to bring people back again and again.

It is now no longer duty of Richmond people to attend a show, it is a privilege. The members of the committee, all of whom were on hand at the opening, have shown what they have to offer. Those present last night enjoyed it and those who fail to attend will have missed a rare opportunity.

Y. M. C. A. Athletics

Try-outs for the relay teams for the indoor meet will be conducted on class nights for the graded class men and in the afternoon for the high school class men. Every member who desires to try out is requested to register his name in the athletic department of the Y. Regular class exercises and games on Tuesday and Saturday nights.

Alco Trucks in the South

NEARLY 1000 Alco trucks are being used daily throughout the country by the leaders in almost all lines of business. Many of those concerns are in the South. Here are some of them:

City of Richmond	Richmond, Virginia
W. S. Forbes & Company	Richmond, Virginia
Fulton Brick Works	Richmond, Virginia
Norfolk and Western Railway Co.	Roanoke, Virginia
Tygart Valley Brewing Company	Grafton, West Virginia

E. O. Painter Fertilizer Company	Jacksonville, Florida
Gulf Refining Company	Jacksonville, Florida
Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation	Chattanooga, Tennessee

We could give you the entire list of Alco owners but prefer to cite some in the South.

Sixty-five per cent of all Alco owners are rated by Bradstreet and Dun at $1,000,000 or over. Big business houses are shrewd buyers. They seldom purchase mistakes. Nearly every one of these big business houses has bought more Alco trucks. This is a good guide for the smaller business house, for it can avoid the danger of an unwise purchase if it, too, selects the Alco.

Be sure and visit the Alco exhibit at the Richmond Automobile Show. A call may mean a saving of thousands of dollars later on.

In the Wake of the Game

By GUS MALBERT

Says W. B. Bradley, representative of the Richmond club, at the meeting of the directors held Saturday: "Sure, make the schedule equitable. Divide all the games equally among the six clubs. Richmond isn't making any demands. If the league doesn't want Richmond to have the week-end games, then Richmond can manage to drift along with the rest of the outfit." Which outburst was caused by the rather flowery remarks of Secretary Wilson, of Petersburg, who said that he not only asked for eleven Saturdays in Cockadeville, but demanded that consideration.

It is passing strange how the righteous wrath of the Appomattox visitors volatilized at this unexpected stand of Richmond. Swapping Saturdays with Petersburg wasn't what the delegates from that bustling city wanted. They were absolutely unwilling to transfer two week-end series from Richmond to Petersburg. They wanted all the benefits coming from playing Richmond, and yet wanted games at home, too. They merely asked that they be allowed to eat their cake and have it, too. But the whole thing changed after Secretary Bradley made his few remarks.

Starting out by shoving the queer, each aspiring individual for honors in the baseball world forgot individual benefits, and concluded that the best interests of the Virginia League could be served if a schedule was adopted that would bring in the greatest amount of money. Sentiment was one thing, but expenses could never be met by sentiment alone. After that very positive note was established, there was no further trouble about the schedule.

The expected opposition to President Boatwright's schedule dwindled to a tempest in a thimble. The president showed clearly that he had given much thought and study to the question, and after the committee got to work just two changes were found necessary to get things right. Of course, the schedule isn't such an night best please each club, but it is one which will conform very nearly to the best interests of the league.

After the business session, one of those old-fashioned banquets was served, with the visitors as the guests of W. B. Bradley. President Boatwright acted as toastmaster, and right well he performed his duties. As the mellowing influence of the thrifteners began to take effect, a more kindly feeling pervaded. Remarkable as it may seem, some of the magnates present went so far as to wish Richmond well, and hoped that the Colts might finish in the first division. Jimmie West, not new to the Virginia League, but new to the directorate, offered an invitation that the next meeting be in Newport News, "where everything good would be secured." Mr. Boatwright, however, had never replied that the next meeting would be held in Newport News, provided that city did not win the pennant. It was the unanimous opinion of Jimmie West that Newport News had lost the meeting.

After the storms and troubles of the past two seasons, the spirit of good fellowship manifested was really delightful; so delightful that some were brought to tears. Nor could the fun-making brigade reconcile them. They were feasting on the yesterdays of the Virginia League, and were inconsolable in their grief.

At least one thing was made certain. There are six pennants to be won in this league this season. Every club has a winner, and the representative of each club was by no means reticent in admitting it. During a fanning bee the relative merits of Doc Newton and Willie McComas-Baker were discussed. When the session ended the question had by no means been settled, though the consensus of opinion, or rather the consensus of such opinion as was expressed, was that both were great ball players and a credit to the Virginia League. Corbell started a near-riot when he rose and requested everybody assembled to drink a toast to Steve Griffin. They did, but serious throat trouble was manifested by not a few.

Elmore Heins displayed an ignorance which is unpardonable. As the ludicrous—that's the way it read on the menu card—as the ludicrous bivalves were served, Elmore discovered a crab lying on the shell of one of his oysters—one of those little oyster crabs. Had assistance not been at hand, Elmore would be among the missing in the ranks of the Virginia League. He had never been among the missing in the ranks of the Virginia League. He had never been the like before, and is not even now convinced that somebody wasn't trying to feed him a venomous insect.

News item—Charlie Shaffer is growing a moustache and refused to attend the meeting. Dr. McCrary says that Charlie is doing well.

They didn't wait for society night at the auto show. If we were not already influenced, we might have found one or two to please our fancy, and they were in the cabaret show, either.

OKLAHOMA SANCTIONS "SUMMER BASEBALL"

Okla. City, Okla., February 17. The Oklahoma State Intercollegiate Athletic Association has taken an advanced stand on the question of the playing of summer baseball by college athletes, which has been given special prominence since the Thorpe case came up, and at a meeting here adopted a resolution permitting the playing of summer baseball without disqualifying the athlete from competition in athletic events controlled by the association.

While there has been a gradual revulsion of feeling in regard to the strict requirements, which have been imposed in that respect in the past, the Oklahoma association is the first to go on record as permitting its athletes to play baseball for money in vacation time, so long as they meet the requirements of the association as to scholarship.

Such action has been demanded generally by baseball men, who say that there should be no question as to how a college man earns his living during the summer, and that he has as much right to do it playing baseball as in any other way, but the colleges have been slow to take that view of the matter.

COLLEGE QUINT REFUSES TO PLAY

Washington and Lee Declines Challenge of Lynchburg Y. M. C. A.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Lynchburg, Va., February 17.—Manager Donohue, of the Washington and Lee basketball team, has declined the challenge of the Lynchburg Y. M. C. A. for a game at the City Auditorium, and the announcement will be a source of much disappointment in the city, for not a few fans had hoped that the game could be arranged toward the close of the White and Blue season.

That such a game would draw considerably upwards of 100 spectators is generally believed, for the followers of the local quint think if they were unable to play the varsity five they would give them the hardest fight for victory they have had thus far this season.

The local quint has a game scheduled with the Roanoke association here Saturday night, and that will probably be the last game of the season at home, for the association has been unable to get games with other associations in the State, nearly all of those appearing to be afraid of the Lynchburg team.

Hamden-Sidney took the lead in the first of the game, but only after much fighting, for the Hamden-Sidney quint kept the ball flying around the goal, but it seemed as if it was impossible for it to go through the basket. The ball, throughout the first half, was first in one territory and then in the other. Tatem's three field goals, combined with Woodhouse's two free throws, scored Randolph-Macon three goals. Hamden-Sidney made only one field goal, by Tatem, and lost her four foul goals by McClung, scoring her 6 points.

In the second half Hamden-Sidney came back strong, and at one time it led, which was due to the fact that McClung, who was leading in the first half, with Carrington's three came at very close intervals. The score stood at one time 18 to 6, but Brown, on two beautiful long shots, won the lead up again. The excitement was intense, with both teams scoring right along and fighting for every whistle blow for time up. The final score was 23 to 18.

Field goals—McClung, 2; Pendleton, 1; Carrington, 3; Brown, 2; Tatem, 3; Woodhouse, 2. Foul goals—Millican, 5; Brown, 2; McClung, 1; Carrington, 1; Referee—Bernier. Time of halves—20 minutes.

Lucia Lacosta, noted in America and Europe for her voice and beauty, appeared last night in the first of a series of three songs recitals at the John Marshall High School, under the auspices of the Bi-County Women's Christian Temperance Union, co-operating with the National Society for Broader Education. She was well received by an appreciative audience. With Miss Lacosta are the following artists: Mabel Woodbury, violin; Marjann Larkhen, harp; and Curtis McCAdams, piano.

The second recital will take place this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the High School Auditorium, and the third and last to-night at 8:15 o'clock.

Alleged Gambling House.
Louis Brown, James Farmer and Vassie Theobald were arrested yesterday by Patrolman Goldsby and Sweet on the charge of maintaining a gambling house at 1709 East Main Street. Theobald was acquitted of the same charge yesterday morning in Police Court.

Buildings Committee Meets To-Night.
The Council Committee on Public Buildings, Properties and Utilities will meet to-night at 8 o'clock at the City Hall.

Gallant Chief and Laddies Save Iron Fence from Flames.
A brave and determined fight against fire was made yesterday afternoon at 1:35 o'clock in the Capitol Square. A careless passer-by dropped a lighted match on the grass as he walked toward the Twelfth Street gate on the southeast corner of the square, and the angry flames were soon rampant.

An alarm was turned in by Custodian John Brunt of the museum, and Chief Jack Pettus responded in person, followed by his company of brave fire laddies, in full uniform of stripes. One of them procured a bucket and, hilling it at the fountain, he coolly poured the water over the burning cut and dried grass at one end of the fire zone, while at the other another convict beat out the devouring element with his coat.

By such determined efforts the fire was soon under control, the damage being mainly to the water, and laddies will meet to-night at 8 o'clock at the City Hall.
